

Act 2

Paraphrased and edited from the Bio section in the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Website regarding the Eagles induction in 1997:

"The Eagles chronicled America in the high-flying Seventies, a time of rapidly changing social mores leading up to what they called "life in the fast lane." They began as wide-eyed country-rockers on the fertile Los Angeles music scene and evolved into purveyors of grandiose, dark-themed albums about excess and seduction. The Eagles were defined and bounded by the Seventies, forming in 1971 by the time Eagles Live was recorded, a double album released in 1980, the group had essentially disbanded. "We probably peaked on Hotel California," Henley noted in a 1982 interview. "After that, we started growing apart as collaborators and as friends." Meanwhile, the Eagles' ongoing influence inspired the renegade "new country" movement in the 1980's. They were born again in 1994 as public demand for their music and messages persuaded them to reunite and continue to this day. The statistics on the Eagles reveal their influence as a rock and roll band. The group's first best-of collection, Their Greatest Hits 1971-1975, is among the best-selling albums of all time, having sold more than 26 million copies. It was the first album to be certified platinum (1 million sold) by the Recording Industry Association of America, which introduced that classification in 1976. They released four consecutive Number One albums between 1975 and 1979: One of These Nights, Their Greatest Hits 1971-1975, Hotel California and The Long Run. Collectively, those four albums topped Billboard's album chart for 27 weeks. Though the band was inactive in the Eighties, their back catalog steadily sold 1.5 million copies a year."

A Note from Sea 'N B

A celebration of two of the great pop/rock bands in the history of pop music produced here at the Prospect Theater. The show by "Sea 'N B Band" is not intended to be a sound-alike event. We simply want to present to the audience a few of our favorite songs from these two supergroups: first from the Beatles and then The Eagles after a short intermission. The selections are based on our experience as performers for over 30 years and seeing how audiences react to certain selections. Inevitably, we are going to miss some audience members' personal favorite songs - forgive us - but we would be here all night to accommodate everything from these prolific artists. We hope you enjoy our chosen selections. As a side note - one song, Imagine, is technically not a Beatles song but submitted for inclusion into this programme as it is one of Beatle John Lennon's finest most long lasting achievements.

Edited from the BIO Channel

"During the grim 1950's when Britain was still recovering from post war blues - four cheeky, young lads from Liverpool, with an eye for the big time, and with a steely determination were convinced they had the talent to make records. In just a couple of years from producing their first demo record in 1962 they became the most famous musical men on the planet. Paul McCartney, John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr are still to this day part of a music legend that has transcended time and decades of changing fashions. Forty years on from their first appearances at the now famous Cavern Club in Liverpool their collective music continues to play around the world. Where other trends of music from many other artists have now dropped off the radar, Beatles songs still remain classics."

Beatles song order:
